

ABSTRACT

A rail connector and method for mounting on a firearm having a front sight, the connector including at least two mounting rails, and a fastening member for 5 securely fastening the connector directly to the front sight of the firearm, the fastening member being coupled to the mounting rails.

10